Chat tools—particularly Instant Bloomberg—are used by most financial institutions worldwide. And as regulators in many jurisdictions require financial institutions to preserve these conversations, they are subject to legal discovery.

Most eDiscovery systems have been optimized for the review of the most prevalent data type in eDiscovery projects: email. Accordingly, chat documents have historically been converted to email file formats in order to facilitate review; but this conversion unnecessarily complicates workflows, prolongs reviews and increases the risk of missing important material. To overcome these challenges faced by financial institutions and their external counsel, Consilio offers its patented Enhanced Chat Review solution.¹

Accelerate Review and Lower Costs

Consilio's end-to-end solution enables a fast and efficient review of chat documents to lower project costs. With Enhanced Chat Review, our clients can:

Pinpoint Important Content Quickly

Filter out the immense amount of noise from entry-exit events, historical events, disclaimer text and posts from irrelevant participants or companies.

Optimize Workflows

Prioritize review of the most relevant chat documents by using robust search engines that leverage chat-specific fields, such as participant count or room ID, along with full content and conceptual searching.

Leverage Advanced Analytics Tools

After cleansing the text of irrelevant content, leverage Consilio's predictive coding technology and services to quickly classify documents for review.
