Law firms handle their clients' most sensitive and proprietary information and are increasingly targets of cyberthieves. Firms are evolving their cybersecurity programs to defend against breaches, but corporate clients require an objective method to evaluate these programs.

Consilio can help. Our Cybersecurity Risk Assessment covers 13 areas, providing clients with insight into firms' information security policies and benchmarking a firm's practices against our database of law firm responses. We also provide an overview of how each firm is continuing to evolve its cybersecurity strategy. These metrics enable our clients to understand risks to their information and how they are being mitigated.

THE INFORMATION YOU NEED

Consilio's Cybersecurity Risk Assessment begins with a customized online survey that assesses the maturity of a firm's information security and data privacy policies and practices. This comprehensive inventory includes information about geography, standards and certifications as well as information on the controls surrounding :

- Information Security
- Privacy and PII
- Storage, Recovery & Retention Practices
- Workforce
- Physical Security
- Monitoring & Incident Response
- Third Parties
- Mobile & Remote Access
- Application Security
- Cloud Services

Once firms complete the survey, Consilio’s experts conduct interviews with each one to gain context for the survey responses and learn about future plans. All of this information is then consolidated to provide a holistic picture of each firm’s risk.

INSIGHTS THAT DRIVE ACTION

After the survey and interviews, Consilio provides you with a snapshot of your information’s risk across all firms and drills down into each individually, benchmarking risk across all categories in our database. We then tailor our recommendations to meet your organization’s unique needs.

In addition, we present each firm with its own individual report. The overview provides benchmarking information and recommendations, identifying strengths and continued opportunities to evolve cybersecurity practices and protocols.
